Architecture Leads In First Day Of Charities Campaign

Law And Commerce Also Report Numerous Contributions

Architecture, Law and Commerce respectively, head the list in contributions to the twelfth annual appeal of the Federated Charities at the close of the first day of campaigning. Incomplete reports show a total of $62.23 collected with Architecture having taken 32.8% of its objective; Law 23.7%; and Commerce 17.2%.

The Charities Campaign, conducted for the purpose of providing funds for the carrying on of innumerable welfare services, has started in what the Charities Committee consider an auspicious manner. All class and faculty representatives are urged to hand in their returns daily in order that true comparisons may be made with last year's collections.

Thousands Assisted

The thirty-three Federated Charities annually provide assistance to thousands of citizens who are in need of medical or nursing care, or other assistance which must be provided by private philanthropy. Numerous part time workers, widows, homeless children and the aged and infirm are desperately in need of aid from the Federated Charities fund now that former means of sustenance have been lost to them.

Over $1,000 per day is necessary to meet the requirements of destitute families alone, while provision of recreation grounds, aid to the sick and infirm and other branches of their work requires a similar expenditure. To meet all these necessary expenditures an objective of $743,000 has been set by the Charities board. The McGill portion of this objective is $17,500 of which $2,000 is expected from the student body.

Crabtree Chairman

Herbert K. Crabtree is chairman of the McGill students' division of the campaign while the students' committee consists of Frank Nobbs for Architecture, Malcolm Ransom and John McDonald from Arts, Frank Campbell from Commerce and Thomas Guilboard from Dentistry.

Ned Hankin represents Engineering, Miss Anderson the Graduate Nurses and Art Minnion the Graduate School while Bill Mitchell will collect returns from the Law Faculty.

Gwen Halpenny and Barbara Webster are in charge of the canvass in the Library School and M.S.P.E. respectively, and Robb MacDonald and Ronald Denton are gathering contributions from the Medicos. R.V.C. returns are being collected by Constance Brown while Doug. Webb looks after the contributions from the Theologs.

Library Officials Provide Facilities To Student Users

Attendants On Saturdays To Outline Card Technique

The officials of the Redpath Library are leaving no stone unturned in order to assist students in a wider and easier use of the facilities of this library. A Students' Handbook has been prepared in which appears a short description of the various collections of books on the campus along with an interesting explanation of the catalogue. Many students have availed themselves of the publication of this booklet by securing a copy and those who have not yet received a handbook may obtain a copy at the library desk.

Announcement is made of the attendance of two members of the Library staff in the Reading Room on Saturday mornings in order to assist students with the use of the card catalogue and other bibliographical resources. Special attention will be given applicants who seek information regrading periodical indexes, encyclopaedias and similar works of reference. As this important service will not be continued indefinitely, it is expected that the student body will avail themselves of this service which will continue during November.

Aid Extended

This additional aid to serious-minded users of the Redpath Library will not prevent the desk assistants from lending students every assistance in obtaining material that they may require for either class work or special reading. The library authorities are duly conscious of the unparalleled facilities possessed by the various McGill libraries and this new movement is one well calculated to simplify the task of students when faced with the task of a wise and proper selection of their reading material.

With such conveniences at their disposal it is hoped by the library authorities that the students will, in the future, make better use of these advantages which the Library has provided.

McGill Celebrates Anniversary Today Of Redpath Library

Gest Chinese Collection Over 130,000 Volumes

OLD SITE CROWDED

Building Dedicated By Sir William Dawson 40 Years Ago

McGill University celebrates, tomorrow, the fortieth anniversary of the opening of the Redpath Library. The presentation was made by Peter Redpath, who was, at the time, senior Governor of the University. The new building was formally opened by His Excellency the Earl of Aberdeen, Governor-General of Canada.

The library, on opening, contained 35,000 books. This has grown to the imposing total of 420,000 volumes. This number does not include the 47,000 volumes contained in the Medical Library, which was founded in 1821; included, however, are the 130,000 volumes of the Gest Chinese Library.

Growth of Library

In 1862, the 2,000 volumes which constituted the college collection, were kept in the old Molson Hall. The increase in number was steady, and by the time the new building was opened, there were 35,000 books.

At the opening, Sir William Dawson pointed out how favorably the new building contrasted with the old one, whose overcrowded atmosphere was no inducement for either study or literary relaxation. Presiding in the absence of Sir Donald A. Smith, afterwards Lord Strathcona, H. R. Molson paid tribute to the generosity of Mr. Redpath. He praised his foresight in perceiving the need of the University and his thoughtfulness in contributing to this need.

Astronomy Society Meet This Thursday

Dr. Douglas Will Lecture Thursday On "Novae Cataclysms"

The inaugural meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Montreal Center, will be held Thursday, November 2nd, 8.30 p.m., in the Macdonald Physics Laboratory. In addition to reading the reports of the secretary and the treasurer for the past year, the meeting will elect the various officers for the coming season.

A highlight of this meeting will be a lecture upon the topic: "Novae,—Nature's greatest cataclysms," to be delivered by Dr. A. Vibert Douglas, the secretary of the Montreal Branch of the Royal Astronomical Society. The announcement is made that, if weather conditions are suitable, the meeting will adjourn to the nearby tennis courts where several small telescopes will be set up and an inspection of the sky made.

It should be remembered that the student body is heartily invited to attend the above lecture and to take advantage of the demonstration scheduled to take place after the meeting.

To Hold Meeting

Operatic And Choral Society To Convene Thursday

A general meeting of the Operatic and Choral Society will be held in the Union Ball Room next Thursday at 8.15. The final arrangements for the coming production will be made. Mrs. Norris will direct the stage work. The chorus including fifty members, will contain twenty-six female and twenty-four male parts; ten of these will be leads. The regular rehearsals will be started next week. All tenors are requested to get in touch with Ralph Linton.

Sir Arthur Officiates

The Principal of McGill, Sir Arthur Currie, will take a prominent part in the annual Service of Remembrance to be held at the base of Soldiers' Tower of the University of Toronto on November 11th. This service will be a feature of the second triennial homecoming of graduates of our sister institution which will be celebrated from November 10th to 12th.

Gliders Convene

Interest in gliding instruction, as operated at the St. Hubert airport by the Glider Section of the McGill Light Airplane Club, is at a high pitch following last Saturday's manoeuvres. Undergraduates wishing to avail themselves of gliding instruction should consult Harry Grimsdale, Engineering Building.

English Literature Society Features Talk On Lawrence

D. H. LAWRENCE, about whom have centered all the quarrels over the modern movement in literature, will be the subject of a talk by Pat Beatts, honour student in classics. This talk, which will concern itself with the man and the artist in Lawrence, will constitute the main topic at the second meeting of the English Literature Society, to be held this afternoon at four o'clock in the Union Grill Room. The President of the Club, Morton Bloomfield, will preside.

Lawrence was probably the greatest literary personality of modern times, and his influence on modern literature is said to be very marked. Since his death, a few years ago, he has been the subject of much discussion. All his works have aroused great controversy in literary circles. Several biographies have been written about him, showing the great interest that exists in his work.

The meeting is open to all who are interested.

Early Amusements Outlined Over Air

Mrs. Warren Speaks For Graduates' Radiologue Society

BROADCAST FROM CKAC

"We In Quebec Amuse Ourselves" Topic Of Radio Address

Speaking for the Graduates' Society Radiologue over CKAC last night, Mrs. F. C. Warren, Assistant Curator of the McCord National Museum, described the pastimes of the early Quebec settlers. Under the title, "We Amuse Ourselves in Quebec," Mrs. Warren took her audience on an imaginary trip back to 1608 when Champlain and his merry friend, Lescarbot, invented the game called 'The Order of Good Times.'

The little group of soldier-explorers in Quebec did not have far to seek for sport. Wild animals prowled around the few buildings below Cape Diamond every night.

First Horse in 1647

The first horse came to Quebec in 1647 and was given to the Governor. The poor animal lived in equestrian solitude for eighteen years until the famous Carignan-Salieres Regiment brought with them a dozen beasts, stated Mrs. Warren.

In the honour of the Marquis de Tracy was given the first Ball ever to take place in Canada. This was given on New Year's Day, in 1667. The pious Jesuit Father who wrote of the event, adds a prayer that no evil may come of it.

Card Games Popular

That card games were prevalent in the latter part of the seventeenth century we are given ample proof. As the currency had given out, the Governor payed the soldiers with playing cards, stamped with the fleur-de-lis, and signed by officials of the Government. Some of these cards are now preserved as the first bank notes ever issued.

After the gaiety of the first ball the amusements increased in Quebec until we learn from General Montcalm's letters in 1755, that he was amazed at the extravagance of the banquets held in his honour.

English Soldiers Add to Gaiety

When the two invasions of Quebec were over, the New Year's Day was very different to that of 1646. Presents and compliments were carried, and calls were made, but they were made by English Officers on horseback, in brightly coloured uniforms; while carioles were drawn up and down the steep streets by the descendants of the horses brought by de Tracy.

In the beginning of the Nineteenth Century, a traveller says:—"The whole of the Canadian inhabitants are remarkably fond of dancing, and frequently amuse themselves with this agreeable exercise."

In 1825 Montreal built one of its first English playhouses. Since then Quebec has always loved its plays.

Games Supplant Labour

There is no longer the necessity to chop down enormous trees to build our houses, or to find a painful path through trackless forest, so we have invented games which take just as much physical force and painstaking perseverance and perhaps as much courage, stated Mrs. Warren in conclusion.

National Federation Chooses Six New Exchange Students

Last Year's Appointees Return To "Home" Universities

DEBATES SPONSORED

Bates College Team Will Tour Canada During Coming Winter

Six Canadian students are this year studying under the Exchange Scholarships which are awarded annually by the National Federation of Canadian University Students with the approval of university authorities of Canada. The holder of an Exchange Scholarship may study for one year at a university other than his "home" university without the payment of tuition or student council fees. At the end of the scholarship year the Exchange Student is required to return to his original university to complete his course.

It is interesting in this connection to note the presence at McGill this season of Peter B. Anderson of Alberta University, this year's appointee. Toronto University has three students from Western universities taking exchange courses, with Queen's representative attending Dalhousie and a Western University undergraduate out at the University of British Columbia.

Return Home

At the same time the six students who had Exchange Scholarships last year are now back at their "home" universities. Thus, McGill has lost Leo Kunelius who has returned to the University of Alberta, while Arthur Weldon has returned here after a year's sojourn at Dalhousie.

The National Federation is sponsoring the appearance in Great Britain of two Canadian university debaters in co-operation with the National Student Unions of England and Scotland. In addition, the Federation has arranged for a tour by a French-

Jazz Tea Features Popular Orchestra

Ayres' Music Will Play At Union Tomorrow Afternoon

Following the practice inaugurated in 1930 a Jazz Tea will be held this week in the Union Cafeteria. The date of the Tea is to be tomorrow, at 4.45 in the afternoon, and will continue for about one hour.

The Union House Committee, which is in charge of this affair, is expecting the atmosphere that goes with it will be conductive to a better understanding between the Freshmen and the upperclassmen who will be present. The food that will be served will be of the usual high standard maintained in the Union Cafeteria, and the service will be prompt.

The music which is the main attraction of the affair will be supplied by Harold Ayres and his orchestra, and promises to be exceptionally good. If this Tea is successful it will induce the Union House Committee to continue the practice throughout the season. It is open to men students only.

Flood Discharged

Bob Flood, injured in the Intercollegiate Soccer game between R. M. C. and McGill on Saturday, was discharged from the Royal Victoria Hospital yesterday. Flood sustained a slight concussion in a heading bee. The wet condition of the field made the ball very heavy, and his injury, although indirectly caused by the heavy, wet ball came directly on a fall.

He was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital where he recovered quickly, but he was kept under observation for two or three days. It is doubtful if he will appear in the game tomorrow night.

Grad. Students Met

The Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research held a meeting Saturday in the MacDonald Physics Laboratory of those interested in following the course of fifteen lectures on the theory of sound recently announced. These lectures will deal with the (a) Propagation of sound waves; (b) the units of sound measurement; (c) the apparatus used for measuring sound intensity; and (d) the theory of electro-acoustic sound generators and receivers.

Mining Society Meets

Plans for the annual banquet and for the forthcoming trip to the Canadian Copper Refineries will be discussed at this afternoon's meeting of the Mining and Metallurgical Society.

This society will meet at five o'clock in the lecture theatre of the Mining Department.

Tour Of Inspection Will Be Made By McGill Daily Staff

REPORTERS will have an excellent chance to see the other end of newspaper production as the Daily staff visits the office of the Montreal Gazette this Wednesday. Owing to the unusually large number of Daily workers they have been divided into four groups, each of which is to visit the Gazette on the following nights respectively: Wed. Nov. 1; Thurs. Nov. 2; Mon. Nov. 6; Wed. Nov. 8. Reporters must come to the Daily office to check off their names on the lists.

This get-together will start off with a light supper in the Union Grill Room at 8.15 p.m. Following this, the reporters will be taken at ten p.m. to the Gazette plant where they will be shown how a newspaper is printed from start to finish, from the editorial office to composing room, and finally to the press room.

All who come are assured of an interesting and instructive evening.

Band Prepares For Game On Saturday

Practice To Be Held Today At Five O'clock

NEW ARRANGEMENTS

Bandmaster Fred Shaw Makes Appeal For Good Turn Outs

Since the University Band faces an important programme this week, practices will be held at five o'clock today, Thursday, and Friday in preparation for the big game between Queens and McGill. The band has been working hard this year, and expects to be at the peak of its form on Saturday, when it leads the rooters to the game. The parade is scheduled to leave the Union at 1.45 p.m. sharp. The best seats will be reserved for those in the parade.

Yesterday's practice marked the initial rehearsal of the McGill Band in preparation for the annual concert, which is to be presented this year in collaboration with the Musical Association. In addition to rehearsing some new numbers, the band devoted their attention to polishing up on the familiar McGill songs and gave special heed to certain original arrangements which will be introduced at the Stadium this coming Saturday afternoon when Ted Reeve's league-leading pigskin chasers make their seasonal bow at McGill Stadium.

Must Turn Out

The leader of the band, Fred Shaw, expressed the hope that there will be no delinquincies among his musical cohorts during this week's extensive preparations, as it is his intention to animate the local squad to do their best and come out victorious in this rugby classic of the year.

Bandsmen, make a point of attending practices regularly this week, today, Thursday and Friday in the ballroom at 5 p.m.

Club Meeting Held To Elect Officers

Chemical Industry Club Met Last Thursday

The first meeting of the Chemical Industry Club was held last Thursday in the Chemistry Building to elect the executive, and to outline plans for future activities.

Dr. Steacie was re-elected to the post of Honorary President; M. H. Blair-McGuffie was elected Vice-President, and N. Tessier became Secretary-Treasurer. O. Mason was made Chairman of the Papers-Committee.

Besides the usual general discussions which take place at every first meeting, definite plans were made to visit the Dominion Glass Company on the 15th or 16th of November. At a not much later date, the Club will inspect the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries, and the Liquid Air plants.

Later in the season it is thought that the members will be able to visit the Dry Ice plants and the McColl Frontenac refineries. These visits are one of the most important of the Club's activities, and do much to promote both interest and practical experience.

Glee Club Meets

The Glee Club, which holds its weekly rehearsal this evening in the Union ballroom at 7 p.m., is anxious to secure further vocal talent, particularly first and second tenors as well as second basses.

Dental Election

The Dental Sophomore class elected its class officers yesterday, as follows: M. F. Mahoney, President; I. Hyams, Secretary Treasurer; T. I. Guilboard, Athletic Manager.

Explorer Describes Expedition Through Gt. Arabian Desert

Mr. Bertram Thomas O.B.E. Opens Second Week's Lectures

NOTED SPEAKER

Addresses Continue Tonight And Tomorrow With Sir Norman Angell

THE second week of lectures sponsered by the National Council of Education began last evening in Montreal High School at 8.15 p.m. The lecturer, Mr. Bertram Thomas, O.B.E., gave an illustrated account of his journey across the Rub 'al Khali, the great desert of Southern Arabia. After the lecture a film illustrating the life and customs of the people was shown. The speaker this evening and tomorrow will be Sir Norman Angell.

Mr. Thomas is a soldier, statesman, orientalist and adventurer. He served as a politicial officer in Iraq, was British Resident in Transjordania, and from 1924 was Prime Minister and Minister of Finance to the Sultan of Muscat Oman, and was the only European to hold the Grand Cordon of the Order of the Al Sa'idi of Muscat and Oman. Mr. Thomas is one of the twenty white men to have pierced the interior of Arabia in 2000 years.

This country, lying between the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf is extremely inaccessible for two reasons, firstly because of its aridity and secondly because of the religious fanaticism of the people who resent intrusion by infidels. Explorations have never been made by large expeditions but always by single adventurers who have disguised themselves as natives. After three journeys to the fringes of this great desert, Mr. Thomas determined to traverse the Rub 'Al Khali, thought to be explorable only by air.

Beginning of Journey

Having made arrangements to be picked up by an oil tanker, he disappeared from Muscat which lies at the South-eastern tip of Arabia, and was landed some six hundred miles down the coast. Here he expected to be met

Societe Francaise Organizes Groups

To Form Conversational Classes Among R.V.C. Students

Organized with the intention of familiarizing the spoken French language, the Societe Francaise is about to form small conversational groups among students attending the Royal Victoria College. Group one will be composed of first and second year students, while group two will be made up of third and fourth representatives.

These groups are very informal and no preparation is necessary for attendance. Meetings will be held at three o'clock on alternate Thursdays. Students, interested in this activity, are urged to give their names immediately to the representatives of the Societe Francaise without delay as it is proposed to hold the initial session on Thursday, November 2nd.

The following are the class representatives to whom applications will be received: first year, Marguerite Dubois; second year, Frances Royer; third year, Evelyn Elkin; and fourth year, Elizabeth Williams.

To Debate Subject

"Is There Justification For Belief In God?"

At the next meeting of the Philosophical Society to be held in the Reading Room of Strathcona Hall on Thursday, November 3, eight p.m., the subject under discussion will be "Is There a Philosophical Justification for a Belief in God." The subject will be introduced by Arthur Minion, President of the Society, and a general discussion will follow. As can be seen by its very title, the subject is one which is bound to provoke much interest and discussion.

All interested are cordially invited to attend.

Examine Pre-Medicos

The examination, conducted by the Faculty of Medicine of prospective medical students, is scheduled to be held in the Arts Building on Friday, December 6th, at 3 p.m.

The examination takes the form of a medical aptitude test and is sponsored by the Association of American Medical colleges. Students who contemplate studying medicine at McGill or elsewhere next fall should file their applications at the Registrar's Office before November 22nd and pay the examination fee of ten dollars.

Spanish Club Sees Illustrated Lecture

"Climbing The Pyrenees" Topic Of Mr. Denton's Address

At a meeting of the Spanish Club, held last night in the McGill Union, Mr. C. F. Denton spoke in Spanish on "Climbing one of the Highest Peaks in the Pyrenees." L. Ogilvie, the president of the Club, introduced Mr. Denton to the audience. As an engineer of ten years standing in the Barcelona Electric Company, Mr. Denton was well qualified to speak on the subject.

With the aid of lantern slides Mr. Denton was able to give the members of the Club a very good idea of the scenic splendours of the Pyrenees.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Hobble and warmly seconded by the audience. Senor Jaramillo, Consul for Columbia, and Senor Magana, the Mexican Consul, delivered brief speeches wishing success to the Spanish Club. Professor Sugars thanked the speakers and the meeting dissolved.

Universities Debate

"Democracy Not Dictatorship Is Salvation Of World"

Great interest is being evinced in campus circles upon the recent announcement of a radio debate between Stanford University of California and the University of Cambridge, England. The subject to be discussed, "Resolved that the political salvation of the world lies in democracy rather than in dictatorship" is one well calculated to cause the student body to listen in on November 18th when the National Broadcasting Company will place its facilities at the disposal of the collegiate world and an interested public audience.

A New Angle

THE INDIANA DAILY STUDENT in an editorial gives us a peculiar new aspect of the advantages of a college education. Whether they can be accepted in full seriousness is a matter of conjecture. A survey was made of a number of Vassar graduates and the conclusion was reached that the sons and daughters of college graduates had a greater chance for survival than others and also had a greater chance of gaining a college education themselves.

It is further claimed that one reason for this fact, if it is to be accepted as technically correct, is that they have had available to them the knowledge afforded by modern science, which helps them in their daily life. It is claimed that science has replaced uncertainty in their life.

We acknowledge the fact that science has made available to all men many startling aids to human existence. We have all around us the fruits of modern invention and research. We have the radio supplying us with entertainment at all hours of the day or night. We have the automobile providing transportation to almost all members of society. We have new instruments and appliances at our beck and call for the preservation and preparation of foods, for the providing of warmth and ventilation, and countless other useful things providing for the comfort and maintenance of life.

These things are common to all men within reason, and generally can be used by all. Nevertheless we consider that the college bred man and woman has the advantage in certain ways. Thanks to the training we acquire in our pursuit of higher education, we gain the facility of being able to judge the relative advantages and disadvantages of the things in the world about us. Our wonderful modern appliances are great in their own way, but they are hard servants, and can do great harm if they are not used with discretion and discrimination. We consider that a college education affords this facility in an effective manner.

Never Let Go

A STANDARD of values and the law of gravitation both have parallel significance. A stone, released from one's hand, will fall to the ground just as will a standard of values which slips from one's moral grasp. Everything in nature tends downwards and spiritual possessions are a part of nature.

Relax your hold on what you formerly treasured and you automatically come to a lower level of values. Let go of integrity and you find yourself on the level of expediency. Let go of character and you find yourself holding to reputation. Let go of courage and you find yourself in the depths of despair.

The truth of the philosophic dictum —"Life is animal in its origin and spiritual in its fruits," can be tested in a score of everyday experiences. The home, for instance, is a place where human animals foregather to find shelter and mutual help. Yet the purely physical thing has been lifted steadily until this institution has become the very center of man's highest achievement and deepest satisfaction.

The life of man as a spiritual fact may be likened to the flight of an airplane—power versus resistance. With him it is the power of will against the resistance of environment which keeps him soaring. A good many people, who have in recent years come down to earth in the tragic collapse of values, did so because they overlooked this field wherein the law of gravitation holds sway.

"Never let go!" is a good motto to adopt as a lifelong objective.

Correspondence Again

SOME time ago we remarked editorially that the Correspondence Column of the Daily was available to graduates and undergraduates for the purpose of airing their views. We again repeat that we welcome letters and will print them immediately upon receipt, but we wish to remind the writers that their correspondence must be either typewritten or in legible longhand. Moreover we will not print any correspondence unless the real name of the writer is given. Pseudonyms may be attached and the real name will be witheld on request, but it must accompany the letter.

Cosmopolitana

PRESS cables from Europe are unusually lean with news about the international situation begotten from Germany's sudden defection from the League of Nations and her walk-out from the disarmament conference.

Daladier's fall in Paris may have had something to do with the abatement of activity, but it is doubtful whether this was the main reason. Hitler is appealing to Germany for ratification of his actions, and he is probably leaving things slide until he can appear before the world claiming the undivided support of Germany.

The issue of the referendum leaves no doubt as to the turn of the votes. As far as can be ascertained, the text of the plebiscite on which the people are being asked to vote yes or no, cannot take no for an answer. I can see only one result from the poll; an unanimous support of Hitler in an election that will probably be able to shame Tammany's activities in New York in its balmiest days. I cannot see how anybody will vote no to the resolution. The whole election is a farce, and relegates the last of parliamentary procedure in Germany to the archives of the State office.

Incidentally, Germany will come out of the elections with the central government more powerful than ever before. No state elections have been called to replace the dissolved state governments, and undoubtedly it is Hitler's plan to run the whole country from Berlin.

This move may have little significance to us who have been accustomed to strong central governments, but it appears very doubtful whether Germany as a whole will be able to accept such a condition. The national structure of Germany is a union of states, much less loosely connected than are the provinces in Canada. Each state is, or rather was until very recently, jealous of her state powers and whatever sovereignty she retained. Only seventy years have elapsed since the southern states reluctantly decided to side with Prussia, shortly before the Franco-Prussian war, and this happened only as a result of unscrupulous secret diplomacy.

Whether the German states, will accept their destruction with calm is an open question. Undoubtedly, no flare-up will result at the moment, but such little acts on the part of Hitler pile up slowly, and eventually he will add the straw that will break his back. Plenty of subterranean dissatisfaction is rife in Germany. The several million votes that the Communists cast last year have not all been brow-beaten into acceptance of the Hitler dogma. I have a story from an eye witness, exceptionally reliable, whose tale has not been mangled by report through a hundred mouths. He tells me of a factory in Germany, employing hundreds of skilled workmen. It so happens that their product is essential to several industries. At an appointed hour every day all the men lay down their tools for ten minutes, barricade the doors, and proceed to sing the International, with a few impromptu choruses thrown in for good measure.

Naturally enough, the management reports the incident to the local Nazi headquarters, and five minutes after peace has descended on the workrooms, the police arrive demanding the leaders of the Communists. The answer is a self-denouncement on the part of every man in the factory. What can the militia do? They cannot arrest everybody, because these skilled workmen cannot be replaced, and to remove them all to the concentration camps would mean the closing of the factory, which in turn would affect several important industries.

It is events like this that show the real condition of the country. While Hitler may claim the unanimous support of the country, there are thousands of groups such as pictured above who will not vote, yet will continue to wait for the opportune moment to break out into the open.

Of course, to us the question persists, as to which is the lesser evil of the two, Hitlerism or Communism. Many entertain fond hopes that Hitler will be superseded by a more human and humane Chancellor but unfortunately, history proves to us that extreme is followed by reaction, and the pendulum must swing to the opposite direction before it settles to its mean.

The imminent reaction, however, must be braved, in spite of many of Hitler's apologists in foreign lands. Hitler has scandalized the world with his actions, his country may be ostracized, and his connections with the world may be brought to an abrupt end should Hitler take his plebiscite, with its foregone conclusions, too seriously.

The world has suffered a great deal since the descent of the German legions upon Flanders, and it must take this potion, perhaps the last of hatred and intolerance, with the courage and the strength with which she has faced the last twenty years.

MICROMANIA

MARKEDLY different from the usual radio program is a series billed as Winnie the Pooh, taken from the children's woodland stories of A. A. Milne. Simple and unassuming, there is an attractiveness to the programs somewhat analagous to Walt Disney's Silly Symphonies of the movie world. Written fundamentally for children, the stories have a certain quality that makes them equally fine entertainment for adults. Unfortunately, they are presented only fifteen minutes a week, OFCF, Wednesdays, at 5.15.

The Canadian Radio Commission is putting on a social program on Saturday evening, November 4th, in connection with the opening of its new Montreal station, OROM, (910 kilocycles). This special program marks Canada's Tenth Anniversary Radio Celebration. The new station will be opened at 7.30 by the Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Mayor of Montreal, and Mr. Hector Charlesworth, chairman of the commission. Musical selections will be offered by the Canadian Grenadier Guards and the Imperial Grenadiers of the Air. The outstanding artists of the commission will be presented, including those from "One Hour with You" and "Gaiety and Romance". (8.00-8.30). REVIEWS

Lucien Martin

TUDOR HALL'S Saturday afternoon recitals started this week-end with a well arranged program featuring Lucien Martin, violinist. It was a concert in which the techniques of the instrument were well mirrored, though not to the detriment of the concert, for the numbers contained much musical interest.

The Brahms concerto which opened the recital is an ambitious work for any violinist to attempt in the original scoring with orchestra. Lacking the latter, the piano was at best barely adequate; the transcription is a good one, and is surprisingly rich and sonorous in some of the bars; it loses so much however in tonal value as to prove irrefutably the original concept of the entire concerto as a canvas of musical tones rather than melodies and harmonies. Jeanne Servetre accompanied at the piano, doing much with the few opportunities at her command, and though hasty on occasion, approached more than once the fullness of the original concerto score.

Of more general interest were the remaining numbers of the program. The bright and gay "Brief Life" by De Falla was followed by one of the Brahms "Hungarian Dances" in which the violinist accentuated the sentimental values rather more than would be expected. The Winiewsky "Tarantella" and the Mozart "Rondeau" though far apart in historic reference were easily comparable as dance treatments and were both given the best performances of the concert.

Lucien Martin's mellow-toned instrument responded the more effectively to his steady bowing and sharply centred notes. In his double-stopping he sometimes fell short of the requirements, and his vibrato was far too rapid. Somewhat dramatic in his outward manner, he gives the feeling of having learned his lessons well, needing now some musical experiences to perfect his art. His pedantic treatment of the pyrotechnical cadenzas of the Brahms concerto showed the student; his very sensitive playing of the lyrically beautiful solo passages of the same composition showed his possibilities.

"Thais" At Imperial

MASSENET'S "THAIS" rung up the curtain last night on two weeks of opera by the Montreal Opera Company. The performances were varied ones: Hope Hampton, lyric soprano sang brilliantly, moved about with studied grace, and enhanced her part further by a radiant personality. William Flinn gave very dramatic feeling to his difficult role, though he appeared to reserve his voice to the detriment of clarity, while Edward Kane's few appearances were well handled, his clear diction and rich tenor falling never amiss.

Opera is only as successful as its principals, and these being of a good standard, the production itself followed suit. The choruses were well trained and very colorfully costumed; occasional loss of tune and pitch can be ascribed to their rather large size. In the matter of tempo, the production was rather slow, a detail that was unfavourably aided by over-long intervals between scene-changes.

The settings deserve special mention, being obviously designed on the grand scale. The ideas of the designer were all sound, and in the case of a roadside scene were most realistically carried out. In the other instances, however, an obvious fault was the mixture of styles; strictly classical forms vied with modern motifs for interest, while impressionistic "cork-screw" trees filled the background.

The dramatic rendering of the opera was in antithesis to the settings. It was in the main academic, following well established operatic modes and mannerisms to perhaps too great an extent, bordering therefore on the melodramatic.

The opera itself, while not as full of melodic interest as some more popular works, contains nevertheless very many beautiful arias, some very effective religious chants in the first act, and the famous "Meditation". The latter played first as an intermezzo by the solo violinist and accompanist was so well done as to be the highlight of the evening. Two duets in the final scenes are also noteworthy for the excellence with which they were sung. The orchestra, under the direction of Ethel Leginska was a well-harmonized unit, generally kept well in hand, but occasionally drowning the singers. Its contribution to the music of the evening was most important, and a good sized audience showed its appreciation.

His Majesty's

THE Montreal Theatre League brings their high promise nearer fulfillment with their second vehicle "Biography", which opened at the His Majesty's last night.

Miss Lynn Kendall, as Marion Froude, S. N. Behrman's portraiture of the temperamental artist whose private life is to be laid bare in her biography, carries the whole performance with a vivid colouration of the woman with a doubtful but pleasant past. She is lively, as becomes her part, but she is also reticent, as becomes the woman.

The story concerns the fairly successful artist whose biography is sought for publication by a popular magazine. The editor believes that he will get excellent copy because the woman's name has been connected with many prominent men. Her first love, realizing that his political career might suffer through revelation, seeks to prevent publication.

The play is billed as a comedy, and true enough is the appelation for some of the situations developed, but in truth, the drama is more of the problem type, except that marriage is not the tie that binds.

Supporting Miss Kendall, is Eric North, who gives the next best individual performance as a composer of some merit and confidant of the artist.

There was less slipping of lines than in "Candle Light" and probably with more assurance, the company will be able to carry out their ambitious programme for the season.

A Mockery

The Editor,
McGill Daily:
Dear Sir:—

I wish to make a few criticisms of the false start made by the Debating Union this year. I am referring to the Mock Parliament session held on Wednesday, October 25th. The name is fitting. It was a mockery, a hideous mockery. I am certain that everyone who was present will agree with me in this. And the reason is obvious.

There were several factors contributing to the failure of the evening. These were, firstly: the date — The event came too early in the session for it to have any appeal. The Debating Union has held no debates, nor public events of any kind this year, and the necessary interest in it has not been revived. Evidence of this is the fact that the total vote count gave approximately 80 people in the whole hall, of whom 15 were members.

Secondly, ignorance of parliamentary procedure. Illustrative of this are the absence of a Clerk of the House, and the antics of the so-called Sergeant-at-Arms. Also the amazingly ignorent and totally inadequate method of vote counting. These things need no explanation; the executive of the Debating Union were doubtless there and know whereof I speak.

Thirdly, the too early closing. For some unknown reason the Speaker ordered the session closed at 10.30. This was much too early. The meeting was just beginning to show remote signs of becoming faintly interesting. And besides, if the times are so critical and the issue so important, as the Government and the Opposition would have us believe, why did they not follow the example of their British and American fellows, and hold an all night session? If they did not wake up during the evening session, they might at least have wakened in the morning.

These are only a few of the bad points of the Mock Parliament but they serve to show the reason for its failure. Hoping these words will have some effect,

I remain, yours truly,
The Vote on the Balcony.

months after the opening of the building which bears his name, Mr. Redpath died at his home, the Manor House, Kent, England. Rev. Dr. MacVicar conducted a memorial service in the reading hall of the new library building on February 6.

Mr. Redpath was benefactor to McGill in various forms. The museum and the library will serve to perpetuate his name,—a name which will hold the gratitude and respect of every student through the coming centuries. He and his wife are said to have given more than half their personal fortune to McGill University. In addition, his contributions to other public institutions amounted to many millions of dollars.

The wisdom of Mr. Redpath in administering his large resources in his lifetime for the good of his fellowmen, is a fact which deserves emphasis. His last public appearance was in the reading hall of the library which bears his name.

LARGE TURNOUT IN FIRST BASKETBALL MEETING OF SEASON

Faulkner And Lewin Of Last Year's Intercollegiate Team Appear

ANSWERING Coach Van Wagner's call for basketball material, some fifty aspirants put in an appearance at the club's first rally of the season held yesterday in the M.H.S. gymnasium. A host of promising material was on hand, for the initial gathering. Besides a near record turnout of new material, several of the veterans were on hand to start training for the season.

"Reed" Lewin, brilliant forward in last year's campaign, showed up well for his 1933 debut on the basketball floor. His abettor, George Faulkner, veteran of many an Intercollegiate battle, flashed good early season form. These two men were finding the basket in consistent fashion. The City Leaguers were also out in force, with 'Okey' Ross, Condit and Wilson all putting in an appearance. It is highly likely that more than one of last year's City Leaguers will step up to the Intercollegiate ranks. Who it will be is still a dark secret.

Veteran To Turn Out

Eddie Silverman, registered in Dentistry, starred with the McGill Intercollegiate team in 1929. He is planning to turn out as soon as his stiff schedule of studies will allow him to do so. He is reported as being in fair shape, having kept in form with the University of Montreal quintette in the Intermediate League.

Coach Van Wagner has not had time to look over the flock of newcomers yet. More aspirants are expected out at the next practice on Wednesday. A newcomer from Amherst University, Mass., impressed in the short period of passing, shooting and dribbling that was held. No doubt others will be noticed as the practices get underway regularly.

Emphasizes Regular Attendance

The Coach emphasizes the need for regular and faithful attendance at these practices. Several exhibition games are slated for the team before it takes on its annual rival, University of Vermont, December the 9th. Until further notice, Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, are set aside for practices.

by a caravan of his former expedition, but was disappointed and spent some time exploring the surrounding country. He found ruins linking the ancient civilization of the country with that of Abysinnia. He also made a collection of over seven hundred specimens of the animal and insect life discovering some twenty-four which were new to science.

Mr. Thomas also found other evidence of a close connection between the peoples of Southern Arabia and Northern Africa. The people are racially distinct from those of the Northland. Speak languages which are closely akin to ancient Semitic roots. This and some of their customs form an interesting link with Abysinnian civilization. Their Mohamedianism is only superficial for though they swear by the Koran have no scruple about breaking their oath, yet will stick to the truth when swearing on some of the old shrinemaking.

The First Lap

Making his way through the coastal mountains by dried up river beds, he reached the territory famous in biblical times for its frankincense. This, by the way, plays a large part in some of the rites of the people who are firm believers in witchcraft. Here he heard rumors of a buried city which is claimed by many to be the ancient city of Ophir.

Plotting his course by sextant and chronometer Mr. Thomas set out from the first water hole into the desert. The camels, when loaded, can only go for about ten days without water or fodder so progress is dependent on the pasture available. Among the dangers of the first lap of the journey was the threat of attack by hostile tribes. There is deadly fueds between the various tribes particularly in times of drought when pasture is scarce. At the commencement of the second stage of the trip, a fresh relay of camels and men was secured. Of the Party only one man had ever crossed the desert from this point, and that seven years before yet he led the way with almost uncanny accuracy. This sense of direction is not always found and there are many tales of tribesmen who have perished in the desert. Almost every man, however, is expert in recognizing old trails, and even the person who made the tracks.

Totaled 2000 Miles

Because of the religious jealousy of the people, Mr. Thomas saw only one small encampment during the whole of his 900 mile trek and that only because the old chief was ill and he had a small stock of medicines. The last lap of the journey was also very hazardous for his camels were in an exhausted condition and forced marches were necessary to reach the widely scattered water holes. During the whole of the march the expedition averaged nine hours in the saddle and many days from 12 to 15. As the average speed of the camed is only three and a half miles per hour many forced marches were necessary to keep to schedule. In the six years from 1814-30 Mr. Thomas made four expeditions, totalling some 2,000 miles. His last journey of 900 miles was over absolute course of the t f ly unexplored country and in the course of the trip he collected many new specimens of animal and insect life. He also made important discoveries linking the civilizations of Southern Arabia and North-Eastern Africa.

Senior And Junior Poloists Beaten By M. A. A. A. Natators

Wheeler Seniors Win By 9-5 Score — Red Juniors Lose 4-2

MORWOOD SHINES

McGILL Water Polo aggregations once again bowed to defeat last night by M.A.A.A. teams. The Seniors went down to the tune of 9-5, while the Juniors came off on the wrong end of a 4-2 score.

Although neither Red squad has as yet won a game in either division this season, it has not been for lack of trying. Last night, both teams showed a fighting spirit and a type of rushing play as yet unequaled in any game this year. Up until the last few minutes of play in both the Senior and Junior tilts, they were still very much in the running. McGill failed to capitalize on many scoring opportunities but showed up well as far as team-work was concerned.

Mitcham Scores Two

Mitcham, of the M.A.A.A. Juniors, while seeming to be entirely out of the play, repeatedly bobbed up from nowhere to make his presence felt. This he did very successfully and and chalked up two goals as a result. The other Junior M.A.A.A. scorers were Crockart and McConnell, who accounted for one goal apiece. The McGill goals were scored by Smythe and Wilson.

In the Senior game, Dave Morwood was the standout, six of the M.A.A.A. goals going to his credit, while his brother, Bob, tallied two more. Kelly finished the scoring for the victors. For McGill, Stein got two goals, Shapiro, Skinner and French dividing the other three.

Hard Play Featured

The Junior game started slowly but quickly picked up speed and developed into a good fast, hard-checking, fighting spectacle. The Senior tilt began with a rush and the players maintained the pace throughout the session. This game was rampant with penalties, three men being off together at one time during the first half.

Last night's exhibitions say much for the work that the teams have put in during the last few days and if such play keeps up, it shouldn't be long until McGill enters the "Win" column in the standings.

The lineup:

McGill Junior: Gilmour, Percy, Smythe, Bourne, Silverstone, Wilson and McLure.

Junior M.A.A.A.: Renaud, Crockart, G. Lester, McConnell, B. Lester, Mitcham and Gibson.

Senior McGill: Wayland, Skinner, Shragovitch, French, Shapiro, and Stein.

Senior M.A.A.A.: Stevens, Roger, B. Morwood, Scott, D. Morwood, and Kelly.

Rugger XV Meets Vickers In Stadium

TONIGHT at 8.45, in the Stadium, McGill's English Rugger XV will line up against the powerful Vickers aggregation in a scheduled inter-city match. The intercollegiate champions suffered a sad blow to their title hopes for this year when Queen's, led by their bright star, Panton, managed to register a victory over the Red rugbyists despite the highly unfavorable conditions on Saturday.

Eddie Hope will captain the side in tonight's contest as "Dud" Butterfield will be unable to take the field with his team-mates. Hope is an experienced rugger player who is quite capable of leading the team from his forward position. The team which will oppose Vickers will consist of Wakefield at fullback; Romans, Gascoigne, Foote, and Todd at three-quarters, with Wooten and Angus at halves. The forwards will be Williams, Hope, Foster, Gildae, Stapleton, Munroe, Cardwell and Farrell.

R.V.C. HOCKEYISTS HEAR COACH BELL ON RULES FRIDAY

R. V. C. HOCKEY will get under way this season with a talk by Dr. Bobby Bell on Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock in Room 105 in the R.V.C. At this meeting Dr. Bell will explain to the players the old rules which they are not quite sure of, and also the new rules coming into effect this year. It is important that all girls wishing to play hockey should be at this meeting as it is found when play begins that most of the candidates are quite hazy about the subject of rules and their limitations.

The outlook for women's hockey this year seems brighter than last as there is quite a bit of enthusiasm amongst the co-eds. A great number of girls have already put their names on the lists in the common-room in the Arts Building, and on the notice-board in R.V.C. Those girls who have not already signed up and who wish to play are urged to put their names on the list. Experience is absolutely unnecessary, and there is the further advantage that those playing hockey are allowed to count this hour as one of their athletic hours for the week.

Outside Games Planned

With talk of several city teams once more resuming activities gaining ground, a more extensive schedule than in previous years lies open to the McGill team. The annual home and home series with the Bishop's team from Lennoxville will likely be continued and in addition the two-game play-offs between R.V.C. and M.S.P.E. for the college championship will doubtlessly be fought out on the campus rink once more.

Five Practice Bouts On Today's Card

Swift Meets MacDonald In Feature Match Of Program

COACH BERT LIGHT'S weekly boxing bouts, which proved a popular success last year and which indirectly helped his squad to win four intercollegiate titles, start again tonight. Five bouts are on the card although only four as yet have been definitely arranged, two fighters for the fifth battle will undoubtedly be chosen just before the practice starts. The fights will be part of the regular drill which takes place in the High School gym, starting at 5 p.m.

Lionel Swift, the youngster who provided such a game showing against Peever of Queen's at the last Assault, has the benefit of one year's experience behind him and is anxious to get into competition with several of the city stars. He meets MacDonald, a newcomer to the squad, in the feature bout tonight although the Black-Johnston set-to looks to be just as interesting.

The program:

155-lbs: J. Black-R. Johnston.
J. Vaczek-F. Wilson.
145-lbs.: Swift-MacDonald.
125-lbs.: Hollingsworth-Yancey.

Intermediate Track Meet With Cadets Set For Thursday

R. M. C. And Redmen Meet In Annual Dual Battle

BERNSTEIN RUNS

INTERMEDIATE TRACKMEN, in spite of having to postpone their training on account of weather conditions, are trying to get back into form in a hurry as their once-postponed meet with R.M.C. has been definitely set for Thursday, Nov. 2. The dual meet, an annual affair between the two teams, has up for competition the eastern section of the intermediate track championship and the Redmen have gained a victory over the cadets in each of the last three meets.

A western intermediate track section, consisting of teams from Toronto, Western, McMaster, and Ontario Agricultural College also runs off a meet based on the same lines and consisting of the same events as the McGill-R.M.C. affair, but there is no run-off or final meet between the two winning teams to decide the Eastern Canada championship. Both sections are content with having two champions although there is close harmony between the record committees of the two divisions, single record holders, in addition to meet holders, being listed.

McGill Favored

McGill are expected to win handily again this year as a goodly number of veterans are on hand once more, while the performance of several newcomers has proved a pleasant surprise. Lennard Bernstein, the perennial intermediate sprint champion, who gained first and second places respectively in the 100 and 220 yard sprints last year is seeking a double championship this time. Len has only appeared at several practices but he has a store of natural ability and endurance which is more than likely to place him at the top of the heap once more.

Three other members on the team have already gained meet championships and are coming back with the intention of repeating once more. Peck has been showing consistent form in his limberings up for the mile and has set as his goal the shattering of the present intermediate record. He is also competing in the three mile race and his chances for a double victory look bright, as Jamieson, to whom he placed second last year, is no longer running. Booth is again entered in the javelin throw while Evelyn, the last of the trio of titlists, takes part in the hurdles.

The McGill entries for the meet are as follows:

100 yds: Lillie, Bernstein, Denton.
220 yds: Lillie, Bernstein, Denton.
440 yds: Pounder, Burleson.
880 yds: Derry, Meakins.
Mile: Peck, Schecter, Bourne.
3 mile: Peck, Crowley.
Pole vault: Pengelly.
Broad jump: Rubin, Romans.
High jump Evelyn, Lamy.
High hurdles: Evelyn, Lewis, Price.
Low hurdles: Evelyn, Lewis, Thompson.
Shot put: Woolhouse, Hilliard.
Discus: Woolhouse, Gillis.
Javelin: Stewart, Gillis, Booth.

All of these men are asked to report at the stadium between 4 and 6 p.m. today.

JUNIOR ALL-STARS MEET FOOTBALLERS IN ANNUAL GAME

McGILL soccer players, having done their part towards winning the intercollegiate title by defeating R. M. C. 4-2 here Saturday, are awaiting the results of next week's match between the Cadets and Varsity to learn their fate. As the initial game of the season, the Varsity-McGill battle, ended in a draw, the Blue players have to record a greater margin over the Kingstonites than McGill's two-point one to retain their championship.

The Red team engage an all-star eleven from the Junior City League in an annual game tomorrow at 7 p.m. The local players have just ended their season and champions have been declared in the two sections that go to compose the Junior League. Due to the fact that their is no age limit governing this branch, many of the players are of senior rank and calibre and should give McGill quite an interesting session. Vickers, Workers' Sport, Rosemount and Blue Bonnets will supply the majority of stars, with individual players being selected from the other teams in the league.

Springfield to Play

Plans for a visit from Springfield University are also underway with a tentative date being set for two weeks hence. The Americans have won the National Intercollegiate Championship two years running and also hold two successive victories over McGill, as they won 2-1 last year at Springfield and 3-1 here two years ago. This game looms as the highlight of a great season for the Redmen and a win over this crack squad would top off the year in fine fashion.

INTERMEDIATE TRACK

All track entrants are asked to report to Coach Van Wagner at the Stadium between 4 and 6 p.m. today.

R.V.C. Swimming Classes

Women students who have signified their intention of taking up swimming will meet in Room 12, R.V.C. This is the first swimming hour and it is essential that everyone whose name appeared on the list be on hand.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

The turnout at yesterday's practice was most disappointing and everyone must be on hand today to prepare for the game with Loyola. Will Morrison, Harvie, Probert, Ruddick and all others who cut the drill please take note.

speaking debating team from the University of Montreal as well as a coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion by a team from Bates College, Maine.

Debate Overseas

The Canadian students presently debating overseas were selected from the Universities of Manitoba and Mount Allison. It will be recalled that in 1928, when the first debating team left our shores in quest of overseas honors, both McGill and Toronto students composed the team.

Another interesting movement is the conduct of a series of debates in the French language outside the Province of Quebec. During the latter half of November two undergraduates from the University of Montreal will debate in French under the auspices of the National Federation of Canadian University Students at the Ottawa University, St. Boniface College, University of Alberta and Mount Royal College in Calgary.

Tour Canada

What undoubtedly will prove interesting information to our readers is the tour during January and February of a team from Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, which, starting from Halifax, will appear before audiences at numerous points to as far west as Vancouver.

Ann Arbor, Mich. — After months of experimenting, Prof. Neil H. Williams of the physics department and C. E. Cleeton, grad., recently produced electromagnetic waves as low as 1.05 centimeters. Waves of such short length have only been produced in the past from sparks. When thus produced they are of such varied length and intensity that they are of little use either practically or in research. The present method makes use of vacuum tubes of highly specialized design.

"The problem of obtaining these low waves was one in molecular structure and radiation," Professor Williams said. "Ammonia, according to the theory of molecular structure, should emit and absorb 1.5 centimeter waves. The research carried on with these extremely short waves was an attempt to demonstrate experimentally the absorption by ammonia that had been predicted. Also, work on ammonia showed it absorbed the waves. In our experiments, the waves were produced and the absorption band was found where it was predicted."

10. U.T.C. Group ..... Rev. E. Reed Monday 1.30 p.m. Room 306 in U.T.C.

Has the world crisis through which we are now passing brought in its wake a crisis in religion? Does Christianity have to "adapt itself" to 1933 conditions? Is there a Christian foundation on which our institutions and social practices may be built? To as many as are interested in the discussion of such questions, we invite you to join in an impartial study on the "Social Teachings of Jesus." For information about this group, see Fredda Peden, Strathcona Hall.

Wednesday, 4.15 p.m., S.C.M. Room, First Floor Up. All students are invited to attend the second discussion of the Series on "A Modern Student Looks at the Bible," led by Professor R. B. Y. Scott.

5.15 p.m.: Mr. Max Yergan's address on Racial Problems, Main Hall, Strathcona Hall.

All S.C.M. 'ers and others are urged not to miss this meeting. Those who were at Couchiching remember him as one of the outstanding leaders of the conference, and we are fortunate to have this opportunity of receiving him on our own campus.
